

I don't tolerate any more intelligence –
after all, I'm the boss
here. Still.

A normal morning

- The calendar has long been up.
- Digital helpers clocks us.
- Even refrigerator and stove.

In the office: optimisation

- AI prioritises, sorts, reflects one's own attitude.
- Do I have another opinion?
- Promise leadership - practice disqualification?!

Evening: Last resistance

- Longing for music becomes a mood query.
- System logic no longer recognises self-determination.

A decision:

- No refusal of technology.
- Courage to question yourself.
- I am the boss - not the algorithm!

Because sometimes it doesn't need a better version – but a real one!

I accompany people and organisations exactly where leadership, personal responsibility and orientation come under pressure – through systems, structures and algorithms.

As SystemicScout, I support managers, teams and companies in seeing clearly in complex situations - and finding orientation instead of just ensuring control.

I don't believe in simple solutions, but in clever questions.

To clear attitude.

And to people who don't want to forget to think for themselves even in a smart world.
