

ORGANISATION
INDIVIDUALS
TEAMS

„Wisdom is like a tree. It grows slowly, but its roots are deep.“

Socrates

5 WISDOM

ORGANISATION

INDIVIDUALS

TEAMS

Once upon a time, there was a wise master who was known for his wisdom and his ability to inspire and teach others. One day, some students came to him and asked, "Master, how did you attain all this wisdom? How did you learn to be so wise?"

ORGANISATION

INDIVIDUALS

TEAMS

The master replied, "Come with me." He led them through the streets of the city until they reached a beautiful garden surrounded by high walls. The students were amazed by the beauty of the garden and wondered what this had to do with wisdom.

ORGANISATION

INDIVIDUALS

TEAMS

The master smiled and said, "In this garden, many different types of plants and trees grow. I often come here to observe them and learn from them. Each plant and tree has its own wisdom and knowledge."

ORGANISATION

INDIVIDUALS

TEAMS

He pointed to a mighty tree and said, "This tree has learned to root deep into the earth to find nutrients and water that enable it to stay strong and healthy. From this tree, we can learn the importance of delving deep into our own lives and finding our roots."

ORGANISATION

INDIVIDUALS

TEAMS

Then he pointed to a flower and said, "This flower teaches us that beauty lies not only in outward appearance but also in the way we conduct ourselves and how we can help others to bloom."

ORGANISATION

INDIVIDUALS

TEAMS

The students listened attentively and realized that the wisdom of the master didn't solely come from books and lectures but also from observing nature and the world around us.

ORGANISATION

INDIVIDUALS

TEAMS

The master concluded with the words, "In every part of creation, there is wisdom to be found; we just need to open our eyes and hearts to see and receive it."

